Favorite quote(s)

- It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who strives valiantly...who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best know in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who have never known neither victory nor defeat." Theodore Roosevelt
- The things which are impossible with men are possible with God" Luke 18:27

Books that inspired you and why

* The Bible by many Authors - It changed my life at 28. I went from searching for truth to finding it.

* A People's History of the United States (1980) by Howard Zinn - Was a major stop on my journey toward truth prior to a spiritual transformation. Everybody should read Zinn's book for perspective of the nation and the world.

Simple Justice: The History of Brown v. Board of Education and Black America's Struggle for Equality by Richard Kluger - Kluger's writing style is flawless and the book gave me insights into the History I heard about but could not comprehend. Was my first literary stop on my journey toward discovering the truth. Another must read for every person of color and those interested in understanding the roots of the legal profession for people of color.
