

Balancing Work / Life / School

Many students attending Delaware Tech have to juggle school, family and work. It is not always easy to find time to fit everything in. Luckily, there are many resources on campus to help you, starting with your program advisor. Your advisor will work with you one-on-one to create a Student Educational Plan (SEP) that will help you set academic goals, identify potential challenges, and map out campus resources to help you be successful. For more information on the academic advising experience at Delaware Tech, please visit our advisement page [1].

Additionally, the College offers numerous one-credit student success courses designed to help students navigate their college experience in addition to learning time management and organizational skills. If you plan to take courses online, we recommend that you take the course that helps you be successful through distance education.

For parents who need childcare while they are enrolled at the College, there is Child Care Center located on every campus. Please see the childcare page [2] to learn more about how your kids can learn while you learn!

Source URL:

<https://www.dtcc.edu/admissions-financial-aid/prospective-student-information/balancing-work-life-school>

Links:

[1] <https://www.dtcc.edu/.../student-resources/academic-advising>

[2] <https://www.dtcc.edu/.../student-resources/childcare>