

Employers

Delaware Technical Community College (the "College") permits employers to post employment opportunities for our students and alumni on the "Handshake" platform. The College screens postings on Handshake in advance and actively monitors the use of job postings, events, employers and students. The College reserves the right to prevent employers from accessing Handshake, removing posts, or taking other steps to modify posts since the College reserves the right to determine what is content appropriate. By registering on the College's Handshake account or by using the service, you acknowledge that responses to any posting shall not be deemed a guarantee by the College of an applicant's fitness or credentials for employment. The College does not guarantee that anyone will apply for a position or contact you in any manner. Furthermore, the College makes no representations about the timeliness or accuracy of the information made available through Handshake or that the system will remain error-free. Accordingly, the College expressly disclaims any liability regarding Handshake's operation or in connection with any actual or potential employment stemming from any applicant's response to any job posting on the site and you hereby irrevocably waive any claim(s) against the College arising from your use of the Handshake platform. Your use of Handshake is an acknowledgement of your understanding and acceptance of the terms and conditions set forth herein.